

MORE OBSESSED WITH TEXTBOOKS THAN TEXT MESSAGING.

At Collegiate Middle School, we believe that the more engaged students are in the classroom, the more excited they are about learning. And the more excited they are, the more likely they are to grasp how important academic achievement in middle school is to their future—in high school, college and beyond. From the first day of every semester till the last, our students are encouraged to become active participants in their education in a stimulating environment that manages to be as entertaining and enjoyable as it is demanding. Enthusiastic, dedicated instructors, 84% of whom hold advanced degrees, mold eager young minds that range in ability from academically average to gifted. And since no two students are alike, each is prized as a unique and valued individual. Our extensive core curriculum challenges each student according to his or her own skills and developmental needs to ensure that every child has what they need to reach their full potential. Perhaps that's why our student body spends more time exchanging ideas than exchanging text. PREFERS MOZART 1785 TO MADDEN 2006.

At Collegiate Middle School, it's our belief that a challenging core curriculum isn't the only measure of how well students perform in school. So we offer all of our charges the opportunity to participate in our exceptional fine arts program. Students who do so are better able to focus and complete tasks. They spend fewer hours watching television. They're more resistant to peer pressure and are less tempted to engage in delinquent behavior. They tend to have higher self-esteem, exhibit greater creativity, have a more active imagination, and score higher on the SATs. Collegiate Middle School fine arts classes meet on a daily basis and include a wide variety of areas for our student body to choose from. Music, theatre, visual arts, creative writing and much more are taught by a multi-talented faculty of instructors who have the experience to provide instruction for students at all levels of ability, from beginner to advanced. And the day your child trades that video game controller in for a cello is a moment you'll cherish forever. Visit loucol.com or call 502-479-0340 to enroll your child today.

MORE INTERESTED IN AMERICAN HISTORY THAN AMERICAN IDOL.

At Collegiate Middle School, it's our firm belief that education should be entertaining as well as enlightening. That's why the first lesson we teach our students is that classrooms and fun aren't mutually exclusive. And while our curriculum is challenging and our teachers demanding, we've found that our students perform much better when the learning process is exciting and engaging. We've achieved remarkable success by focusing on the whole child and integrating a comprehensive range of aptitudes, from academics, art and music, to scientific, technological and physical abilities. Which, in the end, can help our students become well-rounded, successful individuals in school, and perhaps more importantly, in life. We have dedicated our lives to this mission since we first opened our doors in 1915, inspiring talented, diverse students to pursue a college education, a lifetime of learning, and the responsibilities of citizenship with character, confidence, imagination and excellence. So if your child is more concerned with what Simon, Paula and Randy think, than the thinking of our forefathers, maybe you should consider Louisville Collegiate School. WOULD RATHER EXPLORE THE WOODS THAN THE MALL.

At Collegiate Middle School, we believe some of the most important lessons a child can learn are best taught beyond the walls of a classroom. That's why experiential learning or "learning by doing" is such a vital component of our curriculum. In fact, we've found outdoor instruction is inherently more interest-based and student centered, resulting in more engaged, excited, and enthusiastic participants. Not surprisingly, this approach has been proven to accelerate growth, foster creativity, and encourage eager young minds to develop critical thinking skills, improving overall academic performance. Our experiential learning program features a wide range of physically and mentally challenging activities, from camping in North Carolina and rope courses in Kentucky, to museum visits in Chicago. On-campus work includes the study and creation of "hunter-gatherer" tribes, advanced study skills, and final exam preparation for high school and beyond. All of which means enrolling your child in Collegiate Middle School can help them become much better students, both inside the classroom and out. EXCELS AT STICK WORK AND HOMEWORK.

All work and no play can make any school dull and boring. So Collegiate Middle School offers students the opportunity to participate in a wide range of challenging athletic activities featuring a “no cut” policy that ensures all students, regardless of skill level, can join in. And while sports are fun, the benefits don’t end there. Students involved in athletics have higher grade point averages, better attendance, lower dropout rates, fewer disciplinary problems, and better success in college than those who sit on the sidelines. We offer the variety of 11 different school sponsored sports with a total of 19 different athletic teams. Perhaps that’s why approximately 80% of our students play on at least one sports team. And though we’re well aware that winning isn’t everything, both our boys’ and girls’ lacrosse teams have enjoyed a well-earned reputation for having one of the best programs in Louisville for years. Is it any wonder our kids are kicking serious gluteus maximus in academics as well as athletics?
